Delivering Justice and Freedom

In America's least expected places

Development Plan for Disseminating Policies and Practices that Enable Justice and Freedom even in America's most Challenged Neighborhoods and Communities

History

Recommended policies and practices issue from 40+ years of lab research and field applications. We train and certify others in these policies and practices that enable Justice (Outcome Equities) and Freedom (Fair Access to the nation's fountains of opportunity) even in unjust and unfair places¹.

Training

1. Virtual Learning. First-order provision of computer-based training and certification in policies and practices selected by our community of users.
2. Conventional Learning. Second-order or in-person provision of training and certification in policies and practices selected by our community of users. Where indicated, second-order provisions are designed to supplement and bolster trainee competence in delivering prioritized policies and practices.
3. Ongoing Feedback. The preparation of reports that provide information on quality of implementation and impact of policies and practices prioritized by our user community.
4. Annual Conference. A pre-appointed time when trained and certified leaders share experiences and receive updates designed to (a) enhance the quality and impact of policies and practices prioritized for each participating community; (b) deepen the sense of community among enablers of Justice and Freedom even in unjust and unfair y; and (c) celebrate what we anticipate will be the deepening sense of social efficacy and personal wellbeing experienced by trained and certified enablers of Justice and Freedom.

What can be expected of us?

Training and certification of participating schools, cities, counties, and states will help enable the American Dream of liberty (fair access to the nation's fountains of opportunity) and justice (equitable outcomes) for all (Declaration of Independence, 1776—an expectation stipulated 245 years ago which also is consistent with more ancient sacred, secular, and cultural texts). We feel privileged to share remedies we've discovered to address this long-delayed unfinished business of the nation.

¹We specialize in (1) closing achievement gaps in reading, math, and science; (2) creating safe neighborhoods; (3) creating healthy neighborhoods; (4) enhancing family health; (5) enhancing mental health; (6) enhancing physical health; and (7) countering negative effects so often associated with gentrification by increasing local home ownership and maintenance and enabling locally controlled business upstarts and success.
